

CITY PAYS OUTSTANDING DEBTS AND BEGINS NEW

POLICY OF ECONOMY SEE CITY OUT OF DEBT TO BEGIN NEW YEAR

Payment of all outstanding obligations was authorized by the city council Tuesday and R. D. Brown, city treasurer, has drawn checks to wipe out the debts of the city and the council begins the new year with prospect of a fine cash surplus at the end of the fiscal year.

With the exception of a small outstanding obligation which the city has found creditors willing to carry over, all debts have been paid.

In a statement issued to the people this week carried in both Cameron papers the council outlines its policy for 1927 which will bring the government at the end of the year to the point of having a large cash surplus and releasing to the people a credit capacity that will permit more paying or any other public improvement they may desire.

The city by curtailing expenses was able on Wednesday to pay off the debts and have a nice cash surplus to begin the new year.

The work of the council has been successful this year and with the same policy of economy announced for 1927, the government will be in excellent condition, in fact will reach a state seldom attained in the history of the city.

The policy of the council this year is to restrict expenditures to the point of reaching the end of the year with all obligations paid and will have many thousands of dollars in cash.

The council is proud of this record, as the policy adopted at the beginning of 1926 was to curtail expenses and to pay off the debts.

On account of the pressing obligations the city was not in position to do much construction work but is now in position to do much needed work if the policy is carried through for 1927.

Square Dance Wayside Inn Saturday Night

This is one of the best orchestras that will play in this vicinity and Mr. Cammer is expecting a large crowd to enjoy it.

On Saturday night Mr. Cammer is giving an old fashioned barn and square dance. There will be fiddlers there to furnish music for the square dance as well as a good orchestra to furnish music for the modern dance between the old square. Everyone is cordially invited to come out and enjoy this old fashioned dance. Wear your aprons and overalls and come.

BAPTIST WELCOME BIG METHODIST S. S. CLASS

O. M. SMITH CONDUCTS LESSON AS 80 MEN HEAR ABOUT TALENTS

More than 75 men were in the Sunday School Class room of Fred B. Cable, teacher, at the Baptist church Sunday morning to hear O. M. Smith, present the lesson from the 25th chapter of Matthew on the parable of Christ who said the Kingdom is likened to a man who journeyed to a far country leaving with his servants the funds of the household. How they kept their charge in investing and caring for the fortunes of the landlord, made a beautiful story around which Mr. Smith presented the lesson.

The Methodist class visited with the Baptist class on Sunday morning.

Three weeks ago the Baptist class visited with the Methodist class and Mr. Cable conducted the lesson. Mr. Cable will teach the class next Sunday at the Baptist church and the program for the winter months will be continued the following Sunday at which time a visiting teacher will be asked to direct the lesson.

Sam Cheeves is at home from Georgia Tech at Atlanta to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Cheeves.

'I Don't Deserve Sympathy,' Says Hassell; Murderer of 13 Makes Complete Confession

"Lord, God, I'd give anything if I hadn't made the first lick," said George J. Hassell, murderer of 13, in his complete confession of the crime at Farwell on December 1, 1926 when he slew his family of nine. Here is printed for the first time the confession made by Hassell. This is a revolting crime, in fact one of the most gruesome in the annals of modern times. Hassell is to be electrocuted for this murder on February 25, 1927 some time before sunrise in the walls at Huntsville:

THE CONFESSION

I, George J. Hassell, do hereby of my own free will and accord, make this voluntary statement to J. D. Thomas, County Attorney of Parmer County, Texas, after being warned by the said J. D. Thomas that I do not have to make any statement at all and that any statement made may be used in the evidence against me on my trial for the offence concerning which this confession is made.

My name is George Jefferson Hassell; I was born at Smithville, Texas, July 25, 1888, and moved to Oklahoma in 1898. I guess it was. My mother died in 1901. I ran away from home in November in the same year. She died in April and I ran away in November of that year. My father died in 1905. I believe it was but I won't be sure. He was poisoned by my step-mother. That was my first impulse to commit a crime. I went out to the place with a gun to kill the whole bunch of them but got too much whiskey and did not use any gun. That was my first impulse to commit a crime. You ask me how old I was at that time. Well I must have been somewhere in the neighborhood of 15 years. I forgot the exact dates. My father died in Texas close to Fort Worth, my mother died in Oklahoma.

Shortly following my father's death—I must have been older than 15—but shortly following his death I got in with bad company in Abilene, drinking whiskey and embezzled some money, for which I served a term of two years in the Texas state pen. The next day after being released from the Texas pen I enlisted in the army—not knowing what else to follow for an occupation—at Galveston, and was shipped to Ft. Sam Houston at San Antonio, Texas; I enlisted under the name of George Stovall. I picked up my mother's maiden name. I was afraid it wouldn't do to go in the army under the name I had been in the pen under so I picked her maiden name. I served in the army—let's see, from January till August I guess it was, and while in camp at Dallas, after having a fight with one of the cooks, I deserted. I then went back to Abilene, Texas, and from there to O'Valley, Texas, and married Miss Minnie Lofley against her people's will, of course, and after living together about 2 years—let's see our child was about a year old when the folks managed to separate us. After separating us I joined the navy and went to San Francisco and I deserted the navy there and tried to make it (continued on page 6)

GIRL BANDIT LONGS FOR MOTHER'S APRON STRING AGAIN, SHE SAYS

She wanted pretty clothes and the glamor of the great world beyond led her away from the old home down on the farm in Iowa.

The meager income of a Shenandoah farmer was not enough to give her the things she wanted so Vivian Wilfong, pretty 20 year old girl, finds herself in the Milam County jail charged with attempted bank robbery at Milano on December 15, 1926 in company with James Hairston, Clyde Stratton and Lytle Huffman, all of whom must stand trial here.

Each of the three men have been convicted in another county and given prison terms.

Vivian Wilfong says this is her first big thrill and adds that if she ever gets back home to the corn fields of Iowa she will stay there. On the night of the attempted robbery she sat in a high powered car near the

MILAM LODGE KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS VISIT ROCKDALE SAN GABRIEL LODGE

On last Monday night, after a short session, twenty seven members of Milam Lodge Knights of Pythias motored to Rockdale to attend a district meeting.

The Rockdale Lodge, as usual, delegated the major portion of the Rank work to members of Milam Lodge who acquitted themselves most creditably.

During the business session short talks were made by Chancellor Commander Jake Posey, M. G. Cox, Judge Kemp, W. O. Triggs, Lee Tag and Rev. Love.

Red Hot Tamales shipped direct from a celebrated Mexican restaurant from San Antonio and soft drinks were served, after which at the kind invitation of Knight Matson all present adjourned to the beautiful Dixie Theater where a special show was put on.

The unanimous opinion of every one who attended the Rockdale meeting was that such "get-together" convocations should be held frequently.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

LOCAL LODGE PLANS MEETING
TO OBSERVE 63RD BIRTH-DAY OF ORDER

Under a proclamation issued by Supreme Chancellor Richard S. Witte, Milwaukee, Wis., nearly a million members of the Order Knights of Pythias in more than six thousand subordinate lodges in the United States and Canada, will celebrate the sixty-third anniversary of the founding of the Order during the week of February 19th to 26. Observing a program prepared for this ceremony the membership will review the welfare wrought by the fraternity and analyze the progress and objectives of this great American organization.

According to Jake Posey, Chancellor Commander of Milam Lodge No. 125 the local Knights will join in celebrating the anniversary of the order and on Monday February 21, a suitable program will be carried out by the local lodge. The members are looking forward to an enthusiastic meeting.

The Pythian Order was founded on February 19th, 1864, in Old Temperance Hall, Washington, D. C. by Justus H. Rathbone and twelve charter members, most of whom were employees of the government. A review of the achievements of this great American fraternity is a thrilling narrative of service to the citizenship founded on the basis of equality. Lodge groups have moulded public sentiment and promoted patriotic loyalty to the flag and country. Gigantic welfare projects have been carried to completion, homes for aged members and for orphans have been erected, hundreds of boys and girls have been afforded college education, the purse of the Order has been opened to aid in time of great epidemic and to those in storm-ridden areas and great mine disasters.

Summarizing the human relation of the Order to the American citizen, Supreme Chancellor Witte said: "It is fraternity applied, teaching men a higher ideal in life, giving them a new faith in themselves, an effective weapon against ignorance and vice,

It has reared orphanages on a hundred hills; made havens for the aged; poured out a stream of gold to the widow and orphan through the beneficence of its Insurance Department, and has been the star of light and hope to the weak, the guardian of the good name of every member."

In physical assets the Order stands without a peer among fraternal societies. There are fifty-six grand lodges, each properly officered and carrying on the work in the State or Province under its jurisdiction. There are approximately 6,500 subordinate lodges in as many cities and towns in North America. Other lodges are operated under Supreme control in Alaska, Canal Zone, Hawaii, Honolulu and the Philippine Islands. Total assets of Subordinate Lodges, including land, castle halls and cash in hand amount to more than $30,000,000. Hundreds of lodges own their own homes, many of which are outstanding structures in the cities where located.

For fifty years the Insurance Department has paid more than $3,000 daily to aid widows and orphans of members and to keep the Pythian household intact following the death of the husband and father. The Insurance Department is for Pythians only. Like other auxiliaries it is under control of the Supreme Lodge. The assets of the Insurance Department, including its reserve fund amount to more than $20,000,000. This money is invested in bonds issued by the municipalities in which the members of the Insurance Department live. These bonds represent the money expended in providing school houses, good roads, good sanitary conditions and other public improvements, which make better conditions in the localities where our members live. The money which they expend for their life insurance to protect their dependents is re-invested in such manner as to be of benefit not only to the families but to the insured members themselves.

Thus for sixty-three years has the Order progressed by service. With its firm intrenchment financially with a ritual exceeded by none, it occupies an enviable position in the realm of fraternity. It is not sectarian. Neither wealth, power nor influence are considered when a man of good character knocks at its door.

WILL EXPEL MEMBERS ON BRIBE CHARGES

COMMITTEE SAYS DALE AND
MOORE SHOULD BE BOOTED OUT OF LEGISLATURE

Austin, Tex., Feb. 7.—The Texas house of representatives late Monday voted 67 to 58 to hear a full reading of testimony before acting on today's recommendation of an investigation committee that Representative F. A. Dale and H. H. Moore, charged with accepting a $1,000 bribe to influence legislation be expelled.

Reading was to begin at 8 o'clock Monday night. It was estimated that eight hours will be required to go through all the testimony given before the investigating committee.

Wrangling for hours, the house became involved in parliamentary tangles on the question of what to do with the report. Before the final issue of adoption or rejection got before the house, Speaker R. L. Bobbitt relinquished his chair and charged that certain "dilatory" tactics were making a "third rate criminal court" of the house while "the legislature and five million Texas people are on trial."

The Travis county grand jury today was charged by district judge, James Hamilton, thoroughly to investigate allegations of "misconduct" in the house of representatives. He charged the grand jurors that if evidence they develop sustains indictments, they will be "derelict in their duty" not to return them.

Bobbitt was cheered repeatedly as white-faced, he spoke for more than thirty minutes, at times shouting his conviction that the house should act immediately and "show the people of Texas we are not a bunch of bribe-takers and bootleggers."

"I resent insinuations of the counsel for the defense in the committee hearing that legislators are not upholding standards of good government," Bobbitt shouted.

T. H. McGregor, former senator, had said that he expected to prove that lobbyists entertain legislators with bootleg liquor.

Printing of the committee report and testimony in the house journal was assured when rules of the house were found to require such. A motion had been made and debated at length as to whether action should be delayed until printing had given all members a chance to examine testimony.

The house accepted an amendment by the committee to make its report provide that separate action can be had with respect to the two accused.

Voting "call of the house" to bring every representative in Austin, not ill, to the floor, the house instructed its sergeant at arms to round up all absentees. Finding that "call of the house" precluded adjournment until the house some hours reconsidered the vote and removed the call so the members could go to supper.

Acting Speaker Lee Satterwhite warned that whatever number of members returned to hear testimony read Monday night could vote full proceedings and take any action on the report if no one questioned absence of a quorum.

FEDERAL COURTS

Corpus Christi, Feb. 6.—Five men, including Sheriff Raymond Teller of Willacy County, were found guilty of peonage by a jury in federal court here Saturday night.

In addition to Sheriff Raymond Teller, those pronounced guilty were Justice of the Peace Floyd Dodd, former Deputy Sheriff Frank Brandt, former Deputy Sheriff Carl Brandt and L. K. Stockwell, a farmer. C. S. Stockwell, his brother, County Attorney R. F. Robinson, R. G. Reisdorph, a farmer and Lloyd Burnett, another farmer, were acquitted.

The cases went to the jury at one p. m. and a sealed verdict was returned at 4:25 p. m. Judge J. C. Hutcheson and the defendants, however, were not in the courtroom when the verdict came and it was opened when a special session of court was called at 6:40 p. m.

The defendants showed no emotion when the verdicts were read by United States Clerk L. H. Masterson.

Teller, Frank Brandt and Floyd Dodd were found guilty on both counts of an indictment which charged them with violation of the peonage statutes and conspiracy. The jury recommended leniency in the case of Dodd.

On another indictment, Frank Brandt, Carl Brandt and Sheriff Teller were found guilty on both counts with leniency recommended in the case of Frank Brandt.

In still another case Frank Stockwell was found guilty on both counts. The jury found not guilty verdicts against Teller, Dodd, Frank Brandt, R. F. Robinson and Lloyd Burnett.

The men were charged in connection with the alleged working of boys arrested on vagrancy charges by the Willacy County peace officers.

The law provides a penalty of five years on each count.

Judge J. C. Hutcheson announced that sentence would be deferred 30 days until he could further investigate the men's records. He said he wished to determine more accurately what the motives of the official family in the county were, whether they were "selling men at $2 a piece" as was charged, or whether they were trying to help the farmers out.

"I have never seen a more discriminating verdict since I have been on the bench," was the comment of the Court. "Whether those who were convicted should have been acquitted or whether those who were acquitted should have been convicted, I shall not attempt to pass upon. If they had been students of penology they could not have made the discrimination more intelligent. The jury got the ones who should have been gotten, in my opinion."

If Back Hurts Begin on Salts

Flush your Kidneys occasionally if you eat too much meat.

No man or woman who eats lots of meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much meat may form uric acid, which clogs the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood; then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

COMPARATIVE REPORT ON TEXAS DISEASE

Statistics compiled by the state board of health on reports received from county and city health officers on communicable diseases show an ap preciable decrease in 1926 over the previous year of the following maladies: dengue, dysentery, influenza, measles, mumps, pellegra, pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid fever and paratyphoid.

One of the most satisfactory conditions shown is the large decrease in the number of dysentery and typhoid fever cases, this being attributable primarily to improved methods in sanitation and increased number of safe water supplies. Dysentery shows a decrease of 70 per cent of cases in 1926 over 1925 and a decrease of 64 per cent in 1925 over 1924. Typhoid fever shows a decrease in 1926 of 32.3 per cent over the previous year, and in 1925 a decrease of 13.4 per cent over 1924.

Tuberculosis is shown to be still decreasing in the state, the decline in the case-rate for the year being 31.6 per cent, this being a larger decrease than in 1925, when a decline of 32.8 per cent was registered.

Diseases Showing Increase

Diseases shown in this report to have materially increased over the previous year are: malaria, scarlet fever, and smallpox. Diseases showing near the same rate for the two years are: diphtheria, chicken pox and trachoma.

Malaria shows a gain of 19.8 per cent in cases reported for 1926 over 1925. However, there were 14.5 per cent fewer cases of malaria in 1926 than in 1924.

Smallpox shows a gain of 31 per cent of cases in 1926 over the preceding year, there being 1,898 cases reported in Texas in 1926 and 1,309 cases in 1925.

Health And Death Statistics Of The Nation

According to statistics compiled by the United States Bureau of Census, there were 1,219,091 deaths occurring within the registration area of the United States during 1925. This represents a death rate of 11.8 per 1,000 population.

The diseases showing the principal decreases in death for this period in this area over the previous year were measles, pneumonia, and tuberculosis. Diseases against which are registered increased deaths were influenza, heart diseases, inflammations of the kidneys and diarrhea and intestinal inflammation in babies under two years of age.

The death registration area of the United States comprises forty states, the District of Columbia, and twenty-four large cities in states not included. Texas is not included in the death registration area of the United States but eight Texas municipalities are included in this area.

To the People of Cameron

In order that the people of Cameron may know the policy of their government for 1927 with respect to the expenditure of the public revenue, we the members of the City Council in session this the Seventh day of February, 1927, desire to issue a detailed statement outlining the plan the government proposes to put into effect for the next fiscal year so that it will be able to accomplish some permanent improvements for the people and to retire the indebtedness.

As a predicate for this policy we desire to say that at the beginning of the tax paying period in 1926 and at the time the present council came into office there existed an indebtedness not represented by the bonded debt or fixed expenditures which of necessity must be paid in a short time. More than half this amount was paid by the former council before retiring, out of the taxes collected in January 1926 and leaving a balance which the present council will have to pay out of the collections made in January 1927.

This indebtedness represented money expended for the current expenses of the government prior to the fiscal years of 1926 and 1927 in excess of the current revenues, because of unusual demands in operating expenses and represented an accumulated overdraft from other years.

In order to secure the payment of this indebtedness the creditors demanded a pledge representing respective specific amounts of the revenues so that it became necessary to pay this amount in two years, namely 1926 and 1927. When these amounts were paid very little money was left with which to operate the government and necessary and desired expenditures were curtailed.

The City Council desires to state that the payment of this sum of money within the two years named did not jeopardize the credit of the city or in any way represent a state of insolvency but placed an immediate burden on the Council that had to be met out of the current revenues with the result that the Council had to pursue a course of rigid economy in order to place the city's affairs on a better basis.

With the tax collections for January 1927 the city proposes to pay off these notes representing money borrowed for the expenses of the government prior to 1926, together with the notes made by the present council for expenses in 1926 and when this is done the government will be in a position to do some worthwhile things.

It is estimated that the city will not have sufficient funds to pay all the current obligations, including the accumulated debts, but the carry over will be small. Interest and principal for the bonded debts have been provided for as required by law and all the floating and current debt will be paid, except a small portion as appears from present estimates.

At the beginning of this administration and early in 1926, the government, under the direction of the finance committee, published a financial statement showing the debts against the city and will in proper time, as required by law, cause another statement to be published showing the disposition of these debts and the amounts unpaid, if any.

Realizing that a policy of economy must be pursued, the government early in 1926 estimated its expenditures and set about to operate the business of the government so as to be able to meet the current expenses as well as the existing floating debt, from the tax revenues of 1926 and 1927.

The Council for 1926 has borrowed only $14,000 to run the city government, a sum much smaller than has been known in administering the business of the city for a number of years because of the desire to pay the debts and to carry out a policy of economy.

Realizing that another year of economy will bring the city clear of debt with a surplus of funds, the council desires to state that it has adopted the policy of restricting all expenditures to the lowest minimum possible so as to reach the goal of independence and be able to look forward to some definite program of permanent street improvements.

The Council makes this statement to acquaint the people with its policy as well as telling the tax payers in advance that the year ahead will be one in which the government will safeguard the revenues and so conserve to the people the financial energies of the government as to shortly bring the city to the point when we may proceed with those public improvements held in check for the past four years.

It will be the policy of the government to give as good service on streets and in other ways as consistent with the revenues and the peculiar position now governing the finances of the city.

In order to acquaint the people with these plans and to tell the tax payers that for 1927 the city will be able to do only a limited amount of work, the council joins in this statement, so that the demands made on the council for funds will be restricted to conform to this policy. The council asks the co-operation of the people to accomplish this end.

We realize that the people, having just paid their taxes, feel the burden. We know that the question is often asked by those who want to know where the money goes, and we want the tax payers to know that except for this immediate outlay of funds to pay off the pressing obligations, the government would have been able to put back to the benefit of the people for the year 1926 and 1927, many substantial improvements.

We ask your co-operation. We believe that a policy of economy is a good policy at all times for any government and we believe the people will approve our course when they understand that it is a matter now of only a few months until the people may proceed with any reasonable public improvement they desire.

The Council is not advocating a bond issue for street paving or for any other purpose.

We believe it to be the solemn duty of each of us to strive for greater economy in 1927 and to place at the disposal of the people such a margin of credit within the tax limit that it will be easy and practical for them to originate any plan and carry out same they may adopt toward extending the paving or any other permanent improvements they may elect for the future.

If permitted to carry out this policy of rigid economy in 1927, the Council assures the people that it will be able to reduce the tax rate or release a bounding surplus for these needed improvements, as they may elect.

The Council is looking forward to a successful year in managing the city government along the lines as outlined above and we ask the co-operation of the people and petition for approval of this course.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

1865

Lincoln-Douglas Debate Greatest in Our History

Lincoln first attracted national attention in the Lincoln-Douglas debate in 1858. Concerning this debate a writer who heard it says: "Both with reference to the ability of the speakers and its influence upon opinion and events, it was unquestionably the most important in American history; that the speeches of Lincoln, published, circulated and read throughout the free states, did more than any other agency in creating public opinion which prepared the way for the overthrow of slavery." It was in speeches in that debate that Lincoln made frequent use of the declaration that "a house divided against itself shall not stand," a declaration that is both scriptural and self-evident in the application made by Lincoln: "I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free. I do not expect the house to fall, but I do expect it will cease to be divided. It will become all one thing or the other. Either the opponents of slavery will arrest the further spread of it and place it where the public mind may rest in the belief that it is in the course of ultimate extinction, or its advocates will push it forward until it becomes alike lawful in all the states, old as well as new, north as well as south." The position of Douglas on the question of slavery was one of indifference. In his speeches he severely criticized the declaration of Lincoln and his application of a "house divided against itself." Douglas advocated with all his power the doctrine of "popular sovereignty"—a proposition which, as quaintly put by Lincoln, meant that "if one man chooses to enslave another no third man has a right to object."

Both Giants in Intellect.

At the time of this memorable discussion both Lincoln and Douglas were in the full maturity of their powers, says a writer in the Indianapolis News, Douglas being at the age of forty-five years and Lincoln four years his senior. Douglas had long been recognized as an able and popular speaker. In congress and in the United States senate he had been accustomed to meet the ablest debaters of the state and nation. His friends insisted that never, either in conflict with a single opponent, or when repelling the assaults of a whole party had he ever been discomfited. His manner was bold, vigorous and aggressive. He was ready and fluent in language, elegant in diction, fertile in resources and especially familiar with political history. Lincoln was at that time a trained speaker, having contended successfully at the bar, in the legislature and in the congress, and before the people with the ablest men of the West—including Douglas, with whom he always rather sought than avoided a discussion.

Such were the champions who engaged in that famous discussion before the people of Illinois, with the whole nation as spectators and audience, the political questions then pending—especially the vital question relating to slavery. It was not a single combat, but extended through a whole campaign. The meetings were held in the open air, for no hall was large enough to accommodate the immense crowds that assembled at each place to hear the discussion. The speeches were published in all the principal newspapers of the country and were eagerly read by a majority of the voters in the United States. The attention of the people was thus arrested and the whole nation was aroused on this one vital question of the day. It had never been before.

Douglas secured the immediate object of the contest in retaining his seat in the United States senate; but the vigorous logic, the honesty and sincerity and the great intellectual powers exhibited by Lincoln prepared the way for his nomination and election to the Presidency two years later—which was really the goal of Douglas' ambition and the ultimate object of the Lincoln-Douglas debate.

Douglas' Patriotism.

It is a touching incident and happily illustrates the patriotism that inspired both of these statesmen, widely as they differed in political policy and keen as had been their rivalry, just as soon as the life of the republic was menaced they joined hands to shield and save the country they both loved. When Abraham Lincoln walked out to the east steps of the capitol to deliver his inaugural address and take the oath of office as President of the United States—facing a great crowd of people, among whom were many who would gladly have taken his life—the man who accompanied him and who stood close by his side, the man who was the first to take his hand and pledge his unqualified support in the great task Lincoln had assumed as President of a distracted country, was Senator Stephen A. Douglas. Unfortunately for the country, Douglas died a few months later—June 3, 1861—and the cause of the Union and support of the administration was deprived of his great influence.

In response to invitations Lincoln visited the cities of Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and other places in the East on his journey from Springfield to Washington—a journey that occupied about ten days, marked by official receptions and great crowds of people anxious to see and hear the man upon whom the destinies of the country depended. Every word of the President-elect on this journey was carefully scanned for some light by which to read the troubled and uncertain future. Measuring his words with unusual caution, he avoided any announcement of policy, but the country was nevertheless able to read between the lines that it had made no mistake in the man to whom it had confided the preservation of the government.

Pathetic Leave Taking.

Nothing in the history of Lincoln is more pathetic than the scene of his departure from Springfield on the morning of February 11, 1861, when he bade farewell to his old friends and neighbors. The scene is thus described by Lincoln's biographer:

"A throng of at least a thousand of Lincoln's friends and neighbors had gathered at the dingy little railroad station at Springfield to bid him goodbye. It was a cloudy, stormy morning, which served to add gloom and depression to their spirits. The leave taking became a scene of subdued anxiety, almost of solemnity. Mr. Lincoln took a position in the waiting room where his friends filed past him often merely pressing his hand in silent emotion. The half-finished ceremony was broken by the ringing bell and rushing train. The crowd closed about the railroad car into which the President-elect and his party had entered. Then came the central incident of the morning. Once more the bell gave notice of starting, but the conductor paused with his hand lifted to the bell rope. Mr. Lincoln appeared on the platform of the car and raised his hand to command attention. The bystanders bared their heads to the falling snowflakes and standing thus his neighbors heard his voice for the last time in the city of his home."

May Have Foreseen Fate.

Lincoln's farewell address to his Springfield neighbors is expressed in words so chaste and pathetic that it reads as if he already felt the tragic shadow of forecasting fate. "No one," he said, "can realize the sadness I feel at this parting. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever I may return. I go to assume a task more difficult than any that has devolved upon any chief executive since Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being who ever attended him I cannot succeed—with that assistance I can not fail. Trusting in Him who can go with me and remain with you, and be everywhere for good, let us confidently hope that all will be well. To His care I commend you, as I hope in your prayers you will commend me. I bid you an affectionate farewell." And as he waved his hand in farewell to the old home, to which he was never to return, the fervent response from many of his old friends: "God bless and keep you; God protect you." They were "sorrowing most of all for the words he spoke," impressed with a feeling that they would see his face no more.

16 ACRES TO FEED FOR AVERAGE FARM

PLENTY OF FEED WILL SOLVE PRESENT FARM INCOME DIFFICULTY

College Station, Texas, Feb. 8.—If every farmer should grow enough feedstuffs on the farm, the solution of the present agricultural difficulties, brought on by the depression of the price of cotton, would be near at hand, in the opinion of S. A. McMillan, head of the department of farm and ranch management, School of Agriculture, A. & M. College of Texas. In a recent discussion of "Planning the Farm Business for 1927," broadcast by station WTAW, the A. & M. College radio station, Mr. McMillan submitted an estimate of the feed requirements for an ordinary farm, suggesting that sixteen acres in feed crops would provide a safe minimum to take care of the least number of stock that ought to be found on a well balanced farm.

"The kind and amount of feed to grow are going to depend upon the locality and the needs of the farm," he said. "To feed a horse or mule doing ordinary farm work requires about 1 1-4 pounds of grain a day for each 100 pounds of weight. The exact amounts will vary because the amount of feed needed largely depends on the quality of the pasture and the length of time it can be used. It is considered safe to figure on feeding at least 150 days of the year. For feeding ordinary teams, therefore, one will need to provide approximately 1-2 acre of corn to the work animal and about two acres of hay. We usually think of five work animals as the most efficient number because many farm operations require five horses or mules. This number permits a division of one three-horse and one two-horse teams or two two-horse teams with one animal to work singly or to be held in reserve."

Mr. McMillan suggested that the feed estimates of an ordinary farm might be based as follows: Five work animals, 7 1-2 acres of corn; two milk cows, 2 acres of corn; one brood sow to raise at least six pigs, 5 acres of corn; fifty head of poultry, 1 1-2 acres corn. This would give a total of 16 acres in corn. In addition it was suggested that the five work animals would require 10 acres of hay; two cows, 2 acres hay; brood sow, 2 acres pasture and free range for poultry.

"The number acres of cotton to the farm varies widely with the different sections of Texas," he added. "Thirty to forty acres of cotton in areas where rainfall is abundant and weeds and grass grow rapidly require considerable more work than one hundred acres in west Texas. Perhaps sixty acres cotton to the farm is about normal for the black land and South Texas. If farmers who have been growing sixty acres of cotton with no feed stuffs would plant sixteen acres to feed crops and cut cotton acreage reduction for cotton would be solved. However, the feed crop program ought to be regarded as elastic enough to meet regional conditions."

THORNDALE PIONEER PASSED TO HIS REWARD SUN- DAY, JAN. 30TH

C. M. Summerlin passed away on Sunday morning, about 4 a. m., Jan. 30, 1927, at the home of his son, G. S. Summerlin and family in Thorndale, which was also his home until the death of his beloved wife, June 13th 1915. He was born in Rutledge, Cheshaw County, Alabama, February 7, 1843, and was therefore 83 years, 11 months and 24 days old at death.

In July 1869, in the same county, he was married to Miss Evaline Miller, with whom he dwelt in loving companionship for 45 years and nine months.

The family moved to Texas in the year 1892, where he settled soon thereafter in Thorndale, and, with the exception of two years spent in the Stiles community, in Williamson County, has made his home.

He became a Christian early in life and was true and faithful as such, until death, being a charter member of the Christian church in Thorndale, where he held his membership until death, and where he was a faithful attendant and was much beloved and will be greatly missed.

The funeral was held at the Christian church Sunday at 4 p. m., after which he was interred in the City Cemetery by the side of his devoted wife, where they will rest until the resurrection morn.

He is survived by two sons, G. S. Summerlin, merchant of Thorndale, and C. W. Summerlin of Waco, and one daughter, Mrs. Evaline (Carrie), teacher at Berkley, Cal. The youngest son, Howard, having died at Las Vegas, N. M., in the year 1903, ten grandchildren, and nine great grandchildren, most of whom were present at the funeral. Besides these, the most bereaved, he has many very dear friends, including the writer that deeply feel their loss.

HICKS SCHOOL HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE TUES

Fire of undetermined origin totally destroyed the building and equipment of the Hicks school house ten miles south of Rockdale at two o'clock Tuesday morning, February 1, according to a report sent in to The Reporter by the Hicks correspondent. No estimate of the amount of the loss was made by the correspondent, who stated that "the house was burned to the ground."

The building will be rebuilt as soon as possible, it is announced, but at the present time it has not been decided where the school classes will be held until a new building is constructed.

This is the third fire loss suffered at Hicks during the past few weeks, and reports are to the effect that all three have been in one certain section.—Rockdale Reporter.

BURGLARS MAKE GOOD HAUL IN TEMPLE STORE

LOOTING REACHES CENTRAL TEXAS AS STORE BAN- DITS RIFLE SAFE

(Temple Telegram)

Burglars broke open safes in the Roddy Brothers department store and the "Papa George" department store early Sunday morning and escaped with more than $1,000 in money and about that much more in other goods according to inventories of missing goods supplied to police.

No clue as to the identity of the daring burglars had been brought to light late Sunday that promised an unraveling of the mystery.

The burglars broke into the front doors of the two store buildings. Marks on the doors showed that they were pried open with tools far enough for the locks to pass. A light in front of the Roddy Brothers door was broken out, evidently poked out with a stick.

The knobs on the safes in the offices of the two stores were knocked off with a heavy hammer and then the combination bolts punched out with other tools. The safes were completely rifled.

More than $1,000 in cash was taken from the Roddy Brothers safe and suits, shirts, ties, hand bags and other goods missed were said to total another $1,000.

From the "Papa" George's store safe $86 in cash and two small diamond rings were taken. No goods were missed.

Officer Melver said that he shook the door of "Papa George's" store at 5:30 o'clock and it was tightly locked. This indicates that the robbery occurred after that time, probably just before daylight.

The robbery was not discovered until about 8 a. m., giving the burglars ample time to make their getaway before the alarm was sounded. Reuben Koch, son of George Koch, proprietor of "Papa George's" store drove by about 8 o'clock and saw the front door of the store standing open. He reported to the police immediately. Shortly after, Walter Hale Jr., who was looking at the show windows, discovered the front door in Roddy Brothers' store ajar and prints of crowbars on the door facing. He ran across the street and telephoned to police.

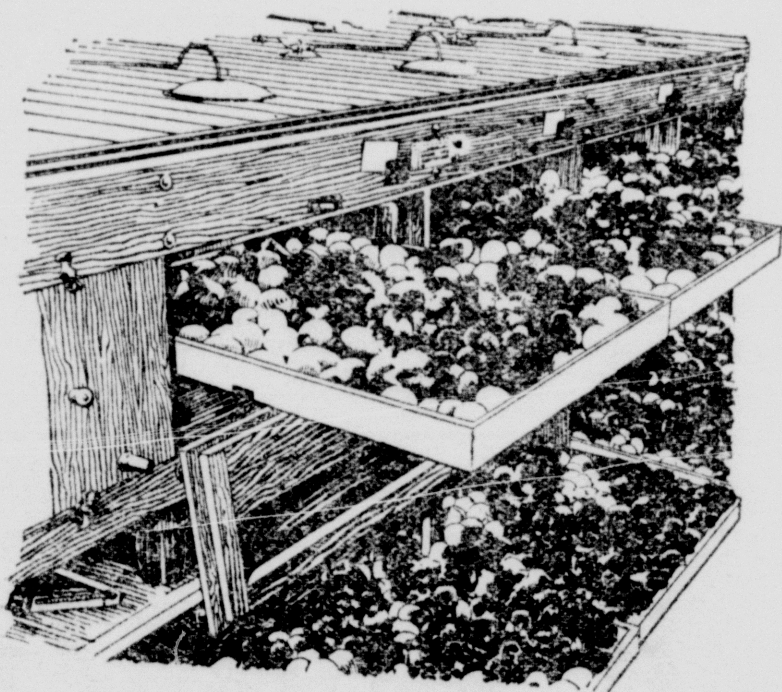

TEXAS ALMANAC REVIEW

The Texas Almanac and State Industrial Guide for 1927, published by The Dallas Morning News, has just come from the press. It contains many new features in addition to complete revision and bringing up to date of all statistics on such general subjects as crops, live stock and minerals. A large folded general commercial map of Texas is included with the volume, showing counties, cities and towns and railroads, including new and tentative lines, and the reverse side a revised highway map of the State.

In addition to keeping up to date figures upon matters of general commercial and political interest, it is the purpose of The Texas Almanac annually to devote a considerable portion of each volume to original matter. Among the new features in the volume this year are list of Texas native trees by common and technical names, with location of growth indicated; location and length of all Texas rivers, bayous and creeks of twenty-five miles or more length; latitude and longitude of all Texas towns for which observations have been made; summary of the hills and amendments recommended by the Educational Survey Commission; complete review of tax remission to counties and cities by the State Legislature, showing amounts of property valuation involved, names and addresses of principal poets, novelists, historians, musical composers, sculptors and painters of Texas, Texas libraries with numbers of volumes, land holdings, power development and other subjects.

Complete and up-to-date information is given also on population, State, district and county officials, public schools, universities and colleges, manufacturing, agriculture, live stock, minerals, railroads, highways, and motor vehicles, utilities, banking, insurance, election results by counties in 1926, reclamation and irrigation, vital statistics, State Government finances and hundreds of other subjects. It is a complete encyclopedia of Texas, carrying latest available facts and figures on practically every field of information.

Buick owners enjoy the savings of leadership

In purchase price and daily use, Buick owners profit by the savings of leadership.

The price of a Buick is moderate, but it buys a car built to the very finest quality ideals—one that would cost you considerably more, if it were not for Buick volume.

For years, the savings provided by great volume have been devoted to the enrichment of Buick value.

And for years, Buick owners have had a more dependable motor car—one in which high quality lessens upkeep expense.

Buy a Buick! It is an investment in economy and satisfaction.

VALENTINES

Valentine's Day is not what it once was. One does not have to be depressed to remember when every drug store was full of paper-lace, hearts pierced with arrows, and verses on the general theme that no matter what point of the compass might be indicated, some anonymous "you" were the beloved. It is not so nowadays.
The swain who wants to send a valentine to his sweetie must either hunt long for a place which purveys such things, or roll his own.

To read Sam Peppy's diary is to discover what an important day February 14 used to be in the lives of all citizens. "Up early," wrote Mr. Peppy on Feb. 14 used to be 8908. ETE on Feb. 14, 1861, "and to Sir W. Batten's but would not go in till I asked whether they that opened the door was a man or a woman, and Mingo, who was there, answered a woman,
which, with his tone, made me laugh;
so up I went and took Mrs. Martha for my valentine (which I do only for complacency), and Sir W. Batten he go in the same manner to my wife and so we were very merry." Four days later: "In the afternoon my wife and I, and Mrs. Martha Batten, my valentine, to the Exchange, and there upon a payre of embroidered and six pave of plain white gloves I laid out 40 shillings upon her." Valentines were expensive.

And they were also as fleeting love.
In the following year "I did this day purposely shun to be seen at Sir W.
Batten's because I would not have his daughter to be my Valentine, as she was the last year there being no great friendship between us now, as formerly."

Probably the real reason for the lack of formal valentines of lace and tinsel lies in the fact that the girls nowadays demand something less symbolic and considerably more expensive. They can't eat or wear paper hearts. With the coming of the new order, another feature of the old has almost disappeared—the so-called comic valentine, by which one could with impunity insult one's foes. Thus the world has forfeited an excellent way of getting back at traffic officers, school teachers, editors and other people. And it is not because old St. Valentine himself did not approve of the custom, for the learned say that he had nothing to do with the custom that features his holiday.

TRY CAMERON FIRST

"Try Cameron First," should be the slogan of every citizen who wants to see this city progress.

It is the community spirit that brings the citizenship closer together and eliminates the lines drawn by cliques. To accomplish anything for the good of the community a sentiment in favor of the proposed project must be created and it is easy to create this sentiment if the proper community spirit prevails.

The main object of this life should be to make the world a better place in which to live but this cannot be accomplished with a citizenship pulling in different directions. The lesser differences should be forgotten when a project is put forth whereby the entire community will prosper and be benefitted. If every citizen of the community would get together and eliminate minor prejudices, work with but one object in view and that to make Cameron the best city in the state in which to live, the things accomplished would form a monument to the present generation that would live thru the ages and be an inspiration for further generations to continue the good work.

BACK IN HARNESS

Marcellus E. Foster, (Mefo) formerly with the Houston Chronicle, is now editor of the Houston Press.

The announcement that Mr. Foster is to return to the newspaper field in Houston will be received with interest by his friends in Texas and throughout the country.

As founder of the Houston Chronicle and its directing head for a number of years, Mr. Foster, gave to that paper a distinction that brought to the publication a nation wide scope of attention. His friends and readers extend their best wishes for success as editor of the Houston Press.

The Houston Press is a Scripps-Howard newspaper and one of the leading publications in Texas. Mr.
Foster began his duties as editor on February 7th.

The Herald extends its congratulations to Mr. Foster and the Press and looks forward with interest to the resumption of work in the field of Texas journalism of one who can bring again to the field a vital force and a mighty personal factor.

TESTING YOUR TEMPERAMENT

You have a temperament. Everybody has. Old fashioned folk would call it your disposition. But science is following a more modern style. So you might as well get in line and acknowledge that you, too, are carrying a temperament concealed somewhere about your person.

Very well, then, how about getting acquainted with your temperament?
It is the child of your moods and the grandchild of your emotions. Want to test it out? If you can stand living with yourself, do this for a month.

When you get up every morning scowl at yourself in the mirror. At the end of the month, say psychologists, your facial map will resemble a sector of no man's land in rainy weather.

Then start smiling at what you see in the mirror on the thirty-first day.
You will perk up wonderfully. Friends will marvel at the change that's come over you. And your digestion will be better.

But don't keep up the morning smile into a simper. Having let your temperament go to both extremes, take too persistently. It may degenerate control and regulate it.

There will be less speed on the highways when there is more in the courts.

The man who doesn't mind his own business often finds that somebody else will.

Some people are so smart they keep out of trouble, and their smartness gets others into it.

He is not a genuine dry, however, if he uses a hip flask to carry his patent medicine in.

It's a case of true love if he can remain for an hour and forget to light another cigaret.

You can continue to respect your friends if you will learn to say "no" when they need money.

Whom the gods would destroy they first equip with the notion that they could lick the world.

THE OLD COUNTRY HOEDOWN

There are still many who remember pleasantly the old country hoedown and who will understand and appreciate these lines my own memory has promoted. I find that the present generation is ignorant of the old country dances and of the log cabin with its puncheon floor.

The pioneer women were square.
The men were gallant and brave.

You need no invitation—
Just come on if you will;
You'll find a hearty welcome,
A cordial, "Hello, Bill."
You will not find a mansion,
With brass knobs on the door,
But just an old log cabin
That has a puncheon floor.

There'll be three old fiddlers
Back in the corner there,
Each with his legs crossed over,
Sitting on an old school chair;
When the crowd begins to gather They'll tune their fiddles up
And all will play together
That old "Unfortunate Pup."

And when the dance commences You'll hear the clarion call:
"Boys salute your partners"
And then, "Promenade all."
The fiddlers keep it handy—
They drink their whiskey raw,
And when they get to feeling it Play "Turkey in the Straw."

First couple go forward
And then back you go—
Gents all circular dance
And the ladies do-de-do—
Right hand to your partners
And favor hands around Swing'em again in a circle
To the music's glorious sound.

They play old "Sally Goodwin"
When the dance has just begun.
Then "Old Leather Britches"
And "Run, Nigger, Run"
They play "Old Black-Eyed Susie" (That was always a scream),
And then one man—by request—
That old "Devil's Dream."

To keep the party going
And to dance another dog,
They call "Gal on a Log,"
And when the dance is over,
All merry as you please,
As they all wander homeward,
The sun shines through the trees.

I can still hear the echo
Of the old country ball,
The voice of the prompter Saying "Swing corners, all!"
Those lovely country maidens—
Those brave and gallant men—
I wonder if I'll ever see
The likes of them again.

O give me back my boyhood,
Old Time, in your flight,
And let me dance the quadrille
About every Friday night.
You may have your Victrola
And all your radio;
Just give me back the hoedown
And the fiddle and the bow!

back across the continent back to my wife and child. I had sent what I had done and when I got to Fresno, California, I got a spell of blues and enlisted back into the army, going back up to Pseudio—not there but Fort McDowell, and was there a few days and they threw me in the guard house and gave me 2 years in the military prison for desertion and I started doing my time at Mare Island and they kept me there awhile and then brought me to Ft. Leavenworth and I finished up my time there. Then they carried me to Norfolk, Virginia, for deserting in the navy and I think it was a year I got there. I done my time at Marine Base and was turned out and came back to Winters Texas, where my wife and child were living and I seen her and tried to make up with her, and there was nothing doing so I started trotting the globe again. I can't name the states I have been in but I have been in 37 different states in the union.

ed up with a woman in San Angelo, Texas, after my wife had turned me down cold and her and I went to Doming, New Mexico, and we pulled a stunt on a guy there in order to get—we were supposed to get 2500 dollars out of it, but instead of that we got 100 dollars. I was supposed to go away and be gone that night and he was to slip into the room but instead of me being gone I was planted outside and after he had gone in there and (this phrase is unprintable) she gave me the signal and I went in but our scheme did not work. That must have been in 1914 because the Exposition was in 1915 and we figured to be in San Francisco or California during that time and was in San Diego during it. Yes, my scheme was to let her get with the man and then to come in on him and make him pay the money but we only got a hundred dollars out of it and from there went on to California. Gentlemen you will have to be patient with me because I am hurting—I am suffering. I am trying to tell you the story straight as I go so there will be no mixup.

Well, before the registration—her mother brought the woman I was with had one child with her and her mother brought two more from Pittsburgh, Penn. She was supposed to be adopting them from some wealthy people—that is, the wealthy people were out of the town at the time and left them there for us to deliver. In 1915, the night of the registration we had a quarrel about the registration, I wasn't going to register and we had a quarrel, I had been drinking a little that day and had been drinking a little and when the quarrel started again I asked her about some money that had disappeared and different things so I lost my temper and choked the woman to death. After choking her to death I choked the children. I dug a hole under the house and buried them. You ask me what place was that? That was in California. I will leave a space in there and add that name when I want to. I can produce the goods and show you that I have stated it straight. Was I ever caught for that? No sir, nobody ever knew it until today, I guess. I never told a soul. I am telling this and trying to show no sympathy on my part. My life has been checkered—well, I made several wild goose chases to Oregon, California and Idaho and different places but made California my headquarters. Anyway, the last registration at the age of 45 I registered on that day. I had to exaggerate my age a whole lot but I would get myself into a place where I had to register because if I didn't it was the last call, and when I registered I took the attorney off and in his private room and told him of my deserting the army and my being an ex-convict and told him I was trying to live it down and trying to make a man of myself and by doing so he kept it that he answered just a few to her questions on the paper as was necessary and put me in class five in the army.

After that I did marry, I married another woman and lived with her about three months and quit her. You ask me what became of my step-mother. As I said I got too much whiskey, and got drunk and didn't use the gun, but she got by with that with the exception she one night got up to get some medicine for herself and accidentally got the poison and took it herself, that is what I was told afterwards and that is only hearsay but I don't know.

There was a period in my life in there I never wrote to any of my folks at all, something like five years. One thing I want to get in your minds clearly that I had nothing whatsoever to do with my brother's death I had made two trips during the last 3 years to see him and his family but I was following the sea in the Merchant Marine. I was a water tender on the boat Admiral Farragut in San Francisco, a while before, but I went to Galveston on the Tunnahaw—just wait a minute while I think about it—I was using an assumed name at the time I was traveling with that woman in California; well, at the time my brother was killed—he was kicked by a mule on the first of July—I was in New Orleans waiting for a ship to go out and knew nothing about it till the sixth of July. My brother had a pretty good crop started—I had been to his place before he started the crop and he told me he was going to work a pretty good sized crop and if the oldest boy stayed at home he would get through all right, and as I was the only one for her to go to for help and being footloose to go and help her (the brother's wife) and being footloose I felt it my duty, and I had no intention and no thoughts of marrying her at the time. His wife was very ignorant of the ways of the world. You understand what I mean, an awful good woman, and of course I got there about the tenth of July after he had been buried. So I don't see how anybody can link me with having anything to do with his death with me in New Orleans and he in Blair, Oklahoma.

After his boys and myself laid the crop by I bought an old Hoopie and went to Kansas and harvested and was fixing to go on when I got a letter from her stating if I would she would be very glad if I would come back and help her pick cotton. So that night on my way back I stayed all night with one of her brothers, J. W. Ferguson, at Bray, Okla. He was having his sale next day and he tried to get me to stay over but I went on down with the folks. Well, everything went along nicely but I am getting ahead of my story. I don't believe in visions but I seen a vision one night about the first night I was out with the thresher. This old Hoopie was cut down and I had a bed in it and was laying there—I don't remember my brother kissing me but ones in my life before and that the last time I visited him. When we parted he kissed me, we kissed one another, and that was the only time. That was the vision I had. I don't know whether it is necessary to put that in or not.

So after going back in the fall we began to gather the feed and the crop and got ready to pick cotton, and of course it was working a hardship with me, and so (unprintable). Anyhow, we talked the matter over and decided we would get married, that we thought the children would be better off. They were still under control, they all thought well of me, and so we went to Lawton and were married about four months after my brother died. I told her maybe the people thought she was not showing respect enough but the way we looked at it we were keeping the children together and were under her control and we got married.

But now I have got to go back and not get ahead of my story in order to get to where the trouble first started. Before I had visited them the last time I was in Oregon working on a ranch, and I got a letter from my niece, the one that is in California now. She was in Kansas at the time, wanting to go to California and I went from Oregon and took her and the baby, her husband and she were separated, you see took them to California and got thought. They got along for a year then all fixed up in good shape. I (unprintable) and after my wife and I were married she pinned me down and asked me the question, did I or did I not have relations with the daughter. I can truthfully say I never told her a lie and I told her I did and that was in the fire from then on. That started the trouble brewing and it was trouble from then on and last fall a year ago we had quite a settee down picking cotton which worked an unjust cause. I started to pack up and leave but didn't use judgment enough to leave but that is the thing I ought to have done—ought to have walked out. Anyhow, spats began to come often, she would always uphold her children, of course, and I was a kind of a lost card. She would always take the side of the children in any correction I would make and fusses came more frequent and more plentiful. We had the daughter in California and her husband to come to our place last summer. She was with another man she had married. She had married again. There was something I was about to tell you but it would not amount to a thing in the world and I believe I will just leave it out. It may just cause a separation between her and her husband and it came pretty near causing one when they were here. Well, maybe, I had better put it in to get it straight. She had a bathing suit with her when they came and one day they put this bathing suit on and she got in a wooden tank out there at my place, bathing. She couldn't swim and he was trying to help her and his wife went on back in the house and came out again in a few minutes, and (unprintable) and she got mad and was going to sue him for a divorce and that night or the night after that, they were leaving in a couple of days, she told the girl's mother about it so the girl's mother got after her and was telling me about it and the girl's mother accused me of doing the same thing and she said she thought the girl was (unprintable), and she was going to take her to Clovis to a doctor to see if (unprintable) and I told her that was a good idea and that I would go with her but for some reason I did not go but one of the boys went with her. She took the girl to a doctor in Clovis, but she did not tell him, just told him no, that was a month later than that or more. It was in August she took the girl but we made a trip to Colorado in July. It was in August she took the girl to the doctor. Just because of her . . . she gave her a treatment and for awhile my wife talked to me all the time about this girl being (unprintable) and I tried to reason with her and try to tell her things like that had happened and if it had we would have to take care of her. (Unprintable) So I had been aiming to go to the oil fields when we got our crop gathered up enough to get enough money to start on and of course I believe my wife thought my idea of going to the oil fields was to get a chance to hike off which if she would let me go to the oil fields no doubt I would never come back—I would probably have kept on going and she fussed around me about me going, she said if I went she was going too, so anyhow we had a fuss this night and we laid there and fussed I guess until twelve o'clock and I got up and dressed and went in and sat down in the other room and she gets up and comes in there and tells me to come back to bed. I had a pint of whiskey down at the barn and I went down there and got a drink of this whiskey and I went back and started to lay down and she smelled this whiskey and it aroused her again.

Now I am honest, I don't know how come the hammer there. I never put it there and did not know it was in the house but that was the first thing I seen—was the hammer, a ball peen hammer that would weigh about a pound or a pound and a half and I grabbed that hammer and hit her twice before I could stop myself and then I shut her wind off with my hands to keep the sound in, and then all the blood commenced running everywhere and I thought I had her passed any noise and I kinda let up on her wind-pipe and she began making a noise and I taken a stocking and tied it around her throat to stop the noise and about the time I had that done the little fellow was laying there and he commenced hollering and putting up a noise and I just reached over and choked him. I choked him with my hand and then tied the stocking on afterwards—he wasn't hit at all. None of the 3 little ones were hit so I had started and Lord God I would have given anything in the world if I had not made the first lick, but I had started it and I finished it. I am not trying to whip the devil around the stump and I am not trying to gain any sympathy, because I don't deserve any sympathy, but after I got these three little ones choked, I taken the hammer, the same hammer and went into the daughter's room and hit her twice and then finished by choking her. The oldest boy being away working with the thresher, Virgil and Russell was sleeping in the back room together so I goes back but Russell was asleep in the front room so I goes back and wakes Russell up and told him to get in his bed Virgil wakes up and says, "Did Alvin come home," and I said "No." And Russell grabs his clothes and goes on and gets in his bed and I built a fire but Virgil after that didn't go back to sleep and I just goes in there and starts choking Russell. He was the only one I hit with the axe but he began to make a noise, I couldn't handle him the way I did the rest of them so Virgil come in there and kinda got his bearings and says, "Daddy what in the world are you trying to do, kill somebody?" And I says, "Get out of here and tend to your business," and he grabbed at me. Of course I had to let this other fellow go and in the meantime though I was afraid so I taken the shotgun from where it was and put it in anchor place and the last one of the boys said get the shot gun and called Mamma for a little while then or Called Maudie. That was the girl and while this other boy and myself was on the floor fighting he was kinda of a chunk of a boy, Virgil hollered for Russell to come and help him, that he would get the — — — and Russell he picked up a brick and hit me two or three times with the brick but of course that don't justify me but I am just telling the straight of it so after I seen I was going to have a pretty tussel with both of them and after they had scratched me up here and banged me up I just swung loose from them and jumped up and ran into the room and grabbed the shot gun and when Virgil walked into the room from the other way I shot him right through the heart, I guess about through the heart, and of course he fell there in the dining room, that was in the dining room where I shot him and where the stove was. So Russell he hid, I guess he got scared and opened the door and ran back into the boys' room and got in the corner of the closet and so I hunted for him and when I found him got him down on the floor and choked him. Just got him down and choked him with my hand and then I tied—don't know what I tied around his neck, but I tied something to stop that noise. After it was all through I goes and gets Virgil first, who was in the dining room and I think I rolled him over on a quilt and dragged him out to the cellar and I believe he was lying next to the wall on the left, west side. Russell was laying at the north end. I got Russell next and he kept wheezing—like this—and I was afraid, it sounded awful loud. It sounded loud to me and I was afraid someone be passing and would hear it to the road and so I gets this axe and hits him and that was the only one I hit with the axe. After I choked him and he wouldn't stop wheezing I hit him.

Now mind you, there was another one that wasn't there that I hadn't got out of the way and that was the oldest boy. This was on Wednesday—about Wednesday. He was to come home from the thresher on Saturday night but he did not come home Saturday, I sat up until about midnight for him. Sunday evening at sundown he come in and I had about two thirds of this cellar filled—and Sunday evening about sundown he come in. That was the Sunday it rained. So we had supper, killed a chicken and went and drove the chickens up and got the ducks off the pond and set around there and played cards until after midnight and I told him the folks had gone to see Aunt Liddy down at Shallow-water, that is where I made up that story at. Well I knew I had to do something. I had some more whiskey on hand. In the meantime—I think it was four o'clock the next morning. I got up and took me a drink of whiskey to help my nerves and I went to the side of his bed with the shotgun and I shot him somewhere. Yet that was while he was asleep, he never did know anything about it. He died easier than any of them and I put him on the other side of the dugout and began covering the dirt in from the other side. Yes I put the bedding in with him but the others I kept the bedding covered up until I could burn them but the bedding he was on I just put in there. I did not know what to do and was just like a madman or a crazy man, I didn't know what, but anyhow I done what I did and I am here to pay my penalty like a man, whatever it may be. I tried my best to make it a death penalty, I tried to stab myself, I tried to find my heart but couldn't do it and after this attempt to commit suicide I had Linaop come in and get the sheriff himself and bring him out and I said—"Here's what they tried to do to me." That is what I thought I said and then I showed the knife.

(Editor's Note—The last paragraph of the confession pertains to Hassell's relations with his step-daughter, to which he confessed, saying it was the source of his late trouble and was the matter which led up to the tragedy of three weeks ago.)

VALENTINES BY WIRE

POPULAR IN JAZ AGE

TELEGRAPH IS USED BY THOUSANDS OBSERVING OLD CUSTOM

"I sent a message to my dear—A thousand leagues and more to her—So sang Rudyard Kipling, and 'telegraph company officials, pondering the matter, decided that if the poet could find pleasure in such a proceeding other people might do likewise.

This is the age of speed and service, the officials argued, and if Americans like the special arrangements for Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter and other special occasion messages why wouldn't they find a similar service on St. Valentine's Day convenient and useful?

Two years ago special announcements were displayed at all offices of the Western Union, artistic Valentine message blanks and envelopes were provided, and from a vast number of Valentine verses a few appropriate sentiments were selected and made available to prospective patrons.

Idea Tremendously Popular

The popularity of the idea far exceeded expectations. Thousands all over the United States took advantage of the service.

Parents sent messages to children away at school and vice versa; old friends seized the opportunity to greet each other in jovial vein appropriate to the festive occasion and more or less lovelorn young people of both sexes eagerly availed themselves of the traditional freedom of the day to send more or less sentimental reminders to the objects of their affection.

Thousands of patrons sent in their messages by telephone, often selecting a message from the list prepared by the company and instructing the telephone operator to "send No. 3" to Miss Mabel Whoozis, at Woodbury, Mass., or Podunk, Ill.

Preparing For Rush Business

Indications are that response to the Valentine by wire movement will be much greater this year, and the Western Union is making even more extensive arrangements for special service.

A more artistic message blank has been provided; a new list of sample messages compiled, embracing the more popular of the previous list and some that are new; blanks and prepared lists are being more widely distributed, and additional telephone, telegraph and messenger facilities are being provided in many offices for St. Valentine's Day.

Here are a few of the messages which the patron may select from the Western Union list:

"1. Dear Valentine, the mail's too slow, I choose this way to let you know I love you."

"2. I like you, I love you, I want you all the time, so please wire me back that you'll be my Valentine."

"3. True love is swift and flies on swallow's wings. Swift be the messenger who my love's message brings."

A hundred years ago youths of England and America were accustomed to resort to various "Ready Letters Writers" or "Valentine Writers" for their verses. Most popular among these volumes were "The New Valentine Letter Writer for All Trades and All Degrees of Emotion," published in London in 1823; "Hymen's Revenge Against Old Maids, Old Bachelors and Impertinent Coxcombs," a volume of about the same date containing numerous sarcastic verses for those who showed hesitation about embracing the institution of matrimony, and another priceless edition called "Cupid's Annual Charter, or St. Valentine's Festival, When All True Lovers Have Free Leave to Declare Their Sentiments for Each Other."

St. Valentine's Day, Feb. 14, is named for a Christian martyr of the Roman period. The custom of exchanging missives of love and affection is believed to have been handed down from the Roman festival of the Lupercalia, celebrated in the month of February, when the names of young women were put into a box and drawn out by men as chance directed. For many centuries Saint Valentine's Eve was celebrated in a manner very similar to the fashion of Roman heathen times, maids and bachelors throwing billets, with their names inscribed, into a receptacle and drawing therefrom the name of some one of the opposite sex, who thereupon became for the year following the "Valentine," or chosen companion, of the more or less lucky individual.

In genial climates Valentine's Day is about the mating period of birds, and this is supposed to have had something to do with the origin of the customs with which the day is associated.

REV. J. A. HALL, BAPTIST PASTOR, MOVES TO WACO

ACCEPTS PASTORATE OF TURNER ST. BAPTIST CHURCH IN WACO

Rev. J. A. Hall, pastor of the First Baptist church of Rockdale for the past nineteen and one-half months, left Tuesday for Waco where he has accepted the pastorate of the Turner Street Baptist church of that city. Although the Rockdale church has not yet secured a pastor to succeed Rev. Hall, regular church services will be held each Sunday, according to members of the pulpit committee.

The Waco church boasts a membership of 660, and pays its pastor $100 more per year than is paid by the Baptists of Rockdale. Bro. Hall states that by moving to Waco his wife will be enabled to complete her work at Baylor University, where she is now enrolled as a junior.

During his stay in Rockdale, Rev. Hall has made quite a record for himself as well as the Baptist church of this city, having reached 148 people for Christ in the church. The church building, during Bro. Hall's period as pastor, has been thoroughly renovated and worked over, and is now in excellent condition, and, according to the pastor, the church now maintains a substantial budget and is able to meet all bills at the first of each month with sufficient funds. The pastor at all times has taught three study courses, including W. M. U., Sunday School, and B. Y. P. U., and at a recent grading of the Sunday School it was found lacking only two points of an A-1 rating.

"The Assistant Pastor," Baptist church newspaper edited by Rev. J. A. Hall, ceased publication with the issue of Saturday, January 29. This paper, self-sustaining and independent of the church, was one of Bro. Hall's most noteworthy undertakings, and was probably the first church newspaper published in Rockdale in recent years.—Rockdale Reporter.

EARLY MORNING FIRE DOES SMALL DAMAGE

The prompt discovery of fire around the flue of the heating stove at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elvia Arledge Monday morning brought the chemical engine and volunteer firemen to the scene and extinguished the flames before much damage was done.

Mr. and Mrs. Arledge had just left the living room and gone into the kitchen to prepare breakfast when Mrs. Arledge perceived to return to the room and noticed smoke and fire in the ceiling around the flue of the heater. The alarm was given and the volunteers responded promptly and soon put out the fire. The damage consists of a repair bill of about $30 on the house, which is owned by the Elliott Estate, and some damage was done to furniture and clothing by the chemicals from the water of the fire engine.—Thorndale Champion.

HOUSEHOLD NOTESPineapple and Efficiency

The housewife who goes in for efficiency may save herself a great deal of time and trouble by buying Hawaiian pineapple canned in the fashion best suited to the dish she wishes to prepare. For pies, puddings, sauces, stuffing the centers of fresh tomatoes or baked apples, there is the crushed or grated variety. For punch, fruit cup and so on, there are "pineapple tid bits," broken pieces all ready to pour out of the can without the trouble of cutting.

For fritters, to serve on French toast or with meat, there are the slices known as "standard quality" and, for the decorative salad or dessert, there are luscious golden slices known as "extra quality." Since pineapple is one of the most delicious and beneficial of all the canned foods besides being one of the easiest to prepare, the wise cook keeps a good supply of it on the store room shelves at all seasons of the year.

To Tempt The Invalid

Hawaiian pineapple egg-nog is a delightful drink to tempt as well as nourish the invalid. To make it, beat the yolk of one egg slightly and add one-eighth teaspoon of salt, one half teaspoon powdered sugar and one-half a cup of syrup drained from a can of Hawaiian pineapple. Fold in one-half of the egg white, stiffly beaten, and when well mixed pour into a glass. Heap remainder of egg white on top and sprinkle with nutmeg. This drink can also be made hot by heating the pineapple juice.

Because pineapple contains bromelain which acts as a powerful aid to digestion, this drink is extremely beneficial besides being tempting and dainty.

HOUSE PASSES

BONUS MEASURE

Washington, Feb. 7.—Less than half hour after it was called up, the House Monday passed the Green bill to enable world war veterans to obtain loans direct from the Veterans' Bureau on adjusted service certificates. The measure was sent to the Senate without a record vote.

It would authorize the bureau to make loans at six per cent at its various offices and hospitals. To finance the loans, an appropriation of $25,000,000 would be authorized from the Government Life Insurance fund, this to be repaid upon maturity of the loans.

To speed consideration Chairman Green of the House Ways and Means Committee, which reported the bill, moved its passage under procedure that shut off amendments, limited debate to forty minutes, and required a two-third vote. The full time for debate was not used, members shouting, "vote, vote," as soon as he had finished an explanation of its provisions.

Representative Schafer (Rep.), Wisconsin, objected to consideration under the rules prohibiting the offering of amendments, while Representative Linthicum of Maryland, Rankin of Mississippi and Blanton of Texas, Democrats, declared that a lower rate of interest should be charged. They contended the veterans should not be forced to pay a higher rate than the Government charges foreign nations on world war debts.

A Man of Sorrows

In Memory, February 12.

They thought him but a clown, a tactless boor
Who hid his days and nights, with quips and jests;
His hours were heedless as his purse was poor;
Without ambition, blind to worthy quests,
He dragged along his days; a human clod
Who scorned religion, mocked and flouted God.

How far they erred! A man of sorrows he,
Who bore within his heart a fatal wound.
Bereft of those he loved, the sympathy
He craved and hungered for could not be found;
The men with whom he walked from day to day
Knew not he tried a dark and lonely way.

A man of sorrows, born to pain and grief,
Yet would he not inflict his woes on men.
In jest and jokes he sought to find relief;
Thus gaining strength, he walked erect again.
Such was the man they called a wag and clown,
The lywood—and the glory!—of his town.

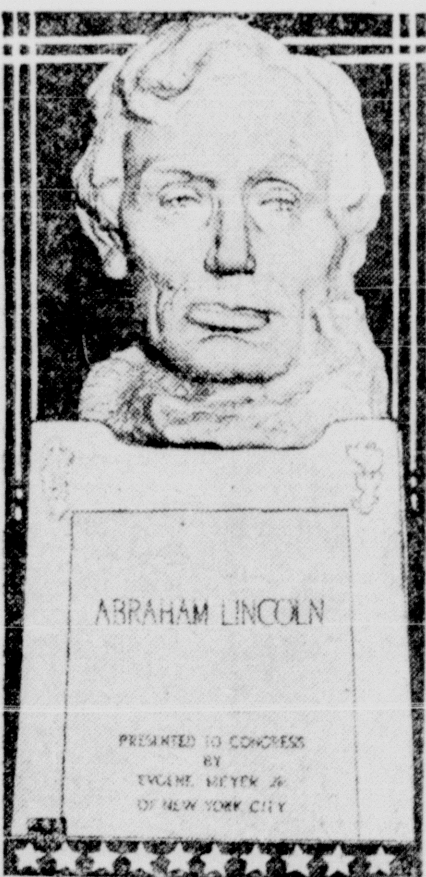

—Thomas Curtis Clark.

Lest We Forget

November 15, 1863.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.
"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who gave their lives that that nation might live. But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it, far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of their devotion—that we here highly resolve that those dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation—under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

FAMOUS LINCOLN BUST

Work of Leon Hurwitz, Presented to Congress by Eugene Myer, Jr., of New York.

"Lincoln's Best Story"

Conveys Good Lesson

Sometimes we think the study of scientific agriculture is a new thing and only thought of within the last few years. Giants of intellect, like the great and dearly beloved Lincoln, saw far ahead of their times, even concerning such homely matters as the fertility of the soil. We give our readers below what is considered Lincoln's best story. It was told to an assembly of farmers at the end of an address. We commend it, and the lesson it conveys, to every thoughtful reader:

"An eastern monarch once charged his wise men to invent him a sentence to be forever in view, and which should be true and appropriate at all times and situations. They presented him the words, 'And this, too, shall pass away.' And yet, let us hope it is not quite true. Let us hope, rather, that by the best cultivation of the physical world beneath and the moral world within us, we shall secure an individual, social and political prosperity and happiness, whose course shall be onward and upward, and which, while the earth endures, shall not pass away."—Farmer and Breeder.

FIRST IN WAR

FIRST IN PEACE

FIRST IN THE HEARTS OF HIS COUNTRYMEN

Soon the nation will observe the anniversary of the birth of George Washington, father of his country, great in time of need and great in time of peace, a rich heritage of inspiration to all men.

Let us pause to honor the memory of that handful of men whose untiring struggle against great odds brought victory to a weak nation and laid deep the beginnings of our happiness and prosperity. Let us remember with reverence the man who forsook wealth, ease and influential friends to lead his countrymen in the war for Liberty—George Washington, American.

Rub it right on your painful back, and instantly the soreness, stiffness and lameness disappears. Don't stay crippled! Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacobs Oil" from your druggist and limber up. goes to A. & M. College, February 14 and returns by way of Cameron where a concert will be given February 15. Miss Jettie J. Denmark is director of the organization. She has recently come to Baylor College from the Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia.

More stress has been placed upon ensemble singing than in previous years, although the solos make up an important part of the program. The first group contains such songs as "The Swan" by Saint Saens and "Songs My Mother Taught Me" by Dvorak. A second chorus group consists of negro spirituals with several solo parts.

A clever skit entitled "The Lady Loses Her Hoop" by Bronson with the Misses Isabel Reeves, Mary South Summers and Elizabeth Marvin as the characters, has been substituted for the usual readings. Miss Mary E. Latimer, head of the Department of Expression, has directed this part of the program.

One of the most novel groups undertaken by the Choral Club is composed of five numbers in costume. The Indian number is a lullaby by Lieurance sung by an Indian maiden. One of the most popular songs is "The Volga Boatman" with the soloist in Russian costume. The other three are Irish, Japanese and Hindu songs. A change of scenery is used with each song and two pages dressed in costumes to harmonize with that of the soloist pull the curtain for the soloist. The backdrops and curtains characterizing the songs have been designed and painted by students of the Art Department under the direction of Miss Ellen D. Stuart, head of the department and Miss Bernice Baker, instructor.

"Land Sighting" by Grieg is one of the most difficult numbers to be given by the Choral Club. One or two surprise novelties are promised by the director. These are to come at the conclusion of the program.

Miss Camilla Marrs is the violinist with the organization. She will play 2 numbers, "Romance" by Wieniawski and "Herjre Kati" by Jeno Hubay. Two piano solos will be given by Miss Martha Holt, who is the Club accompanist.

Mrs. E. M. Dodd, one of the College hostesses, will be the chaperon during the trips to be made this season. The itinerary for the tour which will be made in early May has not been completed but plans have been made to go into the Rio Grande Valley.

The personnel of the Club is as follows: Marie Ashenhurst, New Braunfels; Bartlette Brown, Groesbeck; Haydon Bryant, Rogers; Hortense Covington, San Antonio; Florence Dent, Crockett; Vera Gower, Belton; Lenn; Pearl Harris, Sweetwater; Eunice Lee Hickerson, San Antonio; Martha Holt, McAllen; Paula Jackson, Jermyn; B. Good Health Requires Good Elimination

ONE can't feel well when there is a retention of poisonous waste in the blood. This is called a toxic condition, and is apt to make one tired, dull and languid. Other symptoms are sometimes toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Many people have learned the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, when the kidneys seem functionally inactive. Everywhere one finds enthusiastic Doan's users. Ask your neighbor!

BAYLOR SINGERS SOON TO BEGIN 1927 TOUR

SIGNAL HONORS COME TO SINGERS FROM BELTON SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Belton, Texas, February 9.—Two signal honors have come this year to the Baylor College Choral Club, which will sing in Cameron on February 15. The first is an invitation to sing before the National Music Supervisors Conference which meets in Tulsa, Okla., the week of March 2, and which will be attended by approximately 3,000 music supervisors, teachers and critics. The second is an invitation to appear before the National Educational Association, which will convene in Dallas the week of March 2. It is probable that this invitation will be accepted.

The Choral Club will make its fourteenth annual tour early in May. While the itinerary has not been completed plans have been made to go into the Rio Grande Valley, according to C. C. Hooper, Business manager of Baylor, who has charge of the routing.

Miss Jettie J. Denmark, who is directing the Choral Club this year, possesses a charming mezzo-soprano voice and is also a pianist of note, having been accompanist to George Dasch, assistant director of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. She came to Baylor only this year, having previously been instructor of Public School Music in the Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia. Under her direction one of the most entertaining programs ever attempted by a Baylor College Choral Club has been arranged. Much emphasis has been placed upon ensemble work and some unusual effects have been produced.

PAT NEFF NAMED ON RAILROAD BOARD

COOLIDGE NOMINATES TEXAN FOR WAGE MEDIATION BOARD

Washington, Feb. 7.—Pat M. Neff, former governor of Texas, nominated Monday by President Coolidge to be a member of the United States Board of Mediation handling railroad wage disputes, will have an unexpired term of twenty-three months, at the termination of which he would be eligible for reappointment.

Mr. Neff takes the place of Carl Williams, Oklahoma City, editor of the Oklahoma Stockman and Farmer at the time of his appointment last year when he was designated for the three-year term. There was no advance notice of Mr. Williams' resignation and not even members of Congress from his state knew of his intention to leave the board until the nomination of Mr. Neff was announced.

Mr. Williams resigned on account of ill health. Recently he had been on the Pacific coast investigating a number of cases brought before the board, and returning to Washington sent his letter of resignation to the White House. Members of the board have their offices in Washington, but spend considerable time in other parts of the country in the endeavor to bring disputes between employees and the railroads to an adjustment. The salary of members of the board is $12,000 a year.

Name Submitted Two Years Ago

Mr. Neff's name was brought before the President two years ago shortly after he finished his second term as governor of Texas, and at that time when the South was endeavoring to obtain membership on the Interstate Commerce Commission. The names of Clarence E. Gilmore, chairman of the Texas commission, and Mr. Neff were submitted to the President from Texas. In making up the United States Board of Mediation, President Coolidge tendered a place to Mr. Gilmore, who was not in position to accept. It is known to the close friends of Mr. Gilmore that his ambition is to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The President is said recently to have made numerous inquiries of persons acquainted with Texas, regarding Mr. Neff. The impression then was that he was being considered for a Democratic place on a commission in Washington, where there is a vacancy. Both Texas Senators endorsed Mr. Neff for the place for which he has been named.

What effect this major Federal appointment going to Texas will have on the fortunes of Col. H. H. Haines of Houston, being urged for a Republican place on the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Texas Republican leaders is not known. The clouds hanging over the Interstate Commerce Commission appointment cleared somewhat Monday by the announcement that the name of Representative H. D. Temple of Pennsylvania would not be sent to the Senate. The canvass by Senator Reed of that State as to the chances for Temple's confirmation is said to have been fraught with no favorable assurances and the White House did not relish the matching of another contest with the Senate. The nomination of Cyrus E. Woods of Pennsylvania had been defeated by a heavy vote.

BAD SPELLS

Of Backache and Weakness Helped by Cardui.

Because she wants other women to know about Cardui, Mrs. Ima Mae Jinnright, Route No. 2, Troy, Ala., says this: "Mostly, I was afflicted with bad spells of backache. At times I felt as if my back would break. I would drag one foot after another, in a helpless sort of a way, and once I got down in bed."

"My husband told me about Cardui and got me a bottle. I soon found out what a fine medicine it was. Ever since my first experience with it, I have continued taking it for womanly troubles and, after a few bottles, I have always been well."

DR. W. B. CALDWELL
AT THE AGE OF 83

Mother! It's Cruel to "Physic"
Your Child

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even if the child is chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the most delicate system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

Notice!

To Car Owners

The time for payment of Automobile License Tax has expired but the City will give the car owners until

FEBRUARY 10th

To get their license plates. After that date the law requiring registration will be enforced. The City Marshal wishes to give this notice as a matter of accommodation to those who have not yet secured their numbers.

After February 10 the law will be enforced. The state law governing license tax requires car owners to have these plates and all cars not supplied with these plates after February 10th cannot be operated in Cameron.

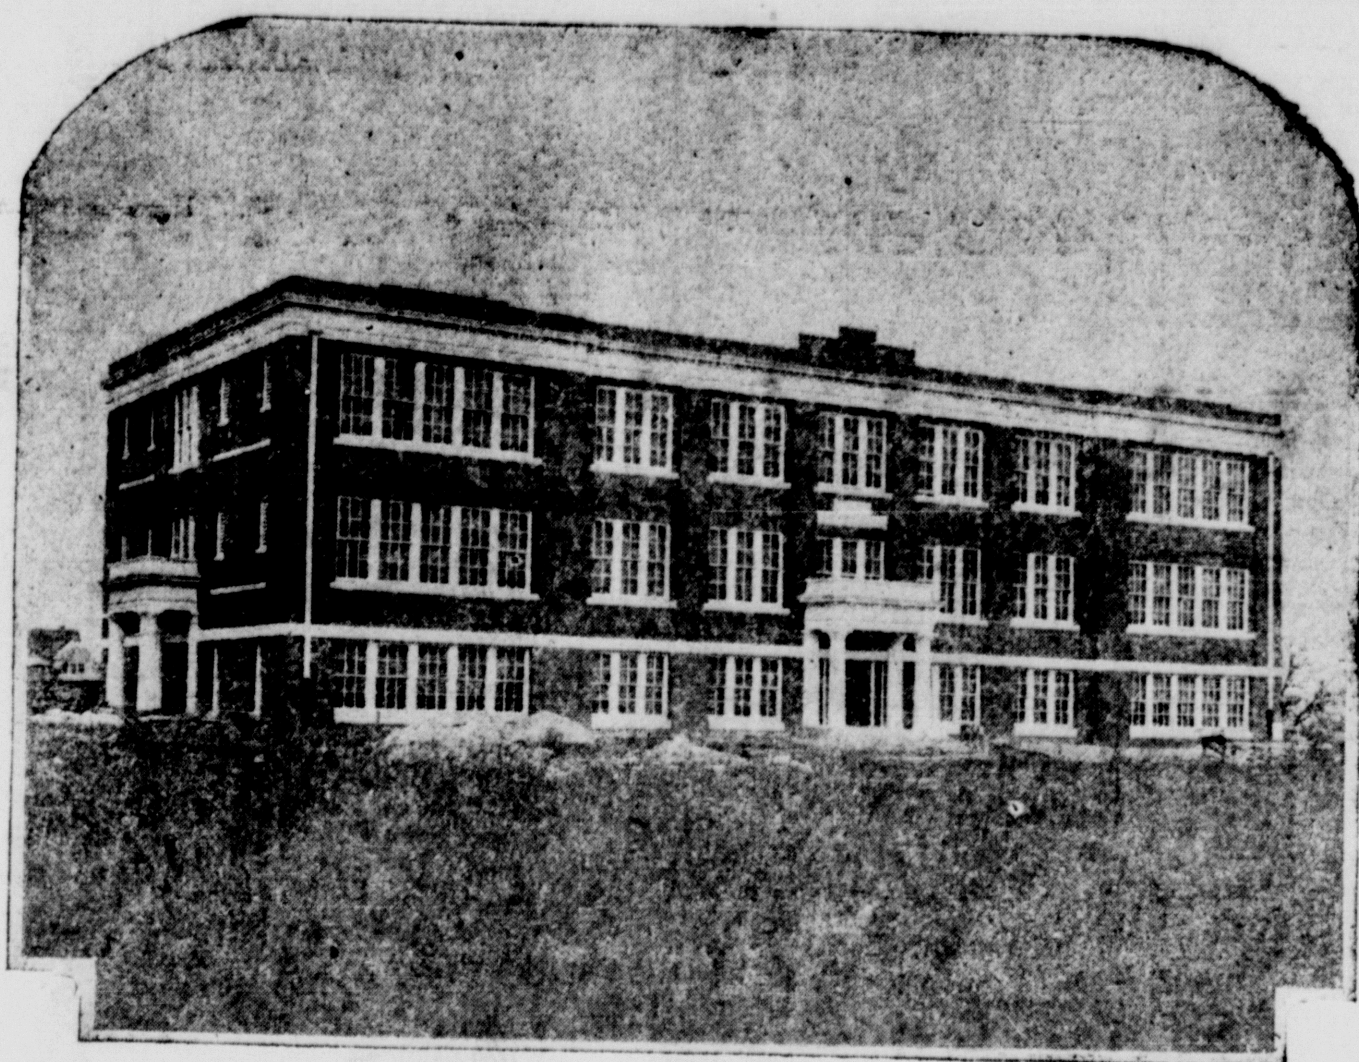

Cars are not permitted to operate or run after February 1st without new numbers.

I believe the car owners will appreciate this extension of time and I ask the co-operation of the car owners so that it will not be necessary to enforce this law against anyone.

Please go to the office of the Tax Collector and pay your License Tax and get your new numbers. The law will be strictly enforced after that date.
